

COMMUNITY CORRECTIONS ALPHA IV
DATA ANALYSIS, 1/1/96-6/30/97

FINAL REPORT

July, 1998

Prepared for
New Mexico Corrections Department
Probation and Parole Division
Robert J. Perry, Cabinet Secretary, New Mexico Corrections Department
Kevin H. Dooley, Director, Probation and Parole Division
Erma Sedillo, Community Corrections Administrator

Prepared by
The Center for Applied Research and Analysis
The Institute for Social Research
University of New Mexico

INSTITUTE FOR SOCIAL RESEARCH CENTER FOR APPLIED RESEARCH AND ANALYSIS

RESEARCH TEAM:

Data Analysis and Writing: Deinya Phenix, M.A.
Principal Investigator: Paul Guerin, Ph.D.

Research Assistants: Stormi Grefphenreed
Rebecca Griego
Rachel Heisler
Felicitas Marquart
Jessica Neely
Brock Perkins, B.A.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. INTRODUCTION
Goals and objectives of this research	1
Organization of this report	2
General methodology	2
Visual illustration as data analysis	3
Summary	4
II. COMMUNITY CORRECTIONS DATABASES AS CRIMINAL JUSTICE DATA	5
The Databases, Their History, and Context	5
On-site, automated data collection	5
Client-level documentation and measurement	5
Problems and Limitations of the Data	6
Implications of data problems for the current research	8
Data Compilation and Processing	9
Comparison of Intake and Risk-Needs Assessment Indicators: A Test of Convergent Validity	10
Summary	13
III. DESCRIPTIVE STATISTICS: CLIENT POPULATION AT THREE POINTS IN TIME	14
Community Corrections Clients at Intake: Baseline Status	15
Basic demographics	15
Education and employment	17
Criminal history	19
Community Corrections Clients at Discharge: Services	22
Community Corrections Clients at Follow Up	29
Summary	31

IV. MEASURING CLIENT CHANGE OVER TIME	32
Change in Client Social Status	32
Change in Criminal Justice Interaction	34
Lifestyle Changes	37
A Closer Look at Change Over Time	38
Change within the individual client	38
Summary	40
V. COMPARISON OF COMMUNITY CORRECTIONS AGENCIES	41
Inter-Agency Intake Patterns	41
Inter-Agency Service Patterns	45
Inter-Agency Change Patterns	49
Summary	51
VI. CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS	52
CC Databases as Criminal Justice Data	52
CC Clients Through Intake Discharge and Follow Up	53
Inter-Agency Comparison	53
Inventory of Recommendations	54
APPENDIX A. SERVICE BREAKDOWN BY AGENCY	55

